Ideas

Where is a good place to bird?

If you want to stay close to home, city parks, nature centers or botanical gardens have walking trails and good habitat. Burr Oak Woods in Blue Springs, Anita B. Gorman Discovery Center or the Overland Park Arboretum are examples.

If you wish to travel, state parks like Weston Bend, Watkins Mill are wonderful. Loess Bluffs National Wildlife Refuge in Mound City, Mo. offers a variety of habitats. Conservation areas like James A. Reed in Lee's Summit can even be birded by car.

How could I prepare?

Study a birding field guide to get familiar with the birds you might see. Listen to bird song recordings to help you identify birds by sound.

A good pair of binoculars, good hiking shoes, sunscreen, drinking water and lots of insect repellent are smart equipment choices. Plan your Birdathon event by visiting the sites beforehand.
