Providing food and habitat for birds and wildlife through fall, winter, and into the early spring months is both educational and rewarding!

Amazing and valuable details for all environments: from decks and patios, to yards and properties will be covered.

Join in the fun and insight of gardening for birds and wildlife during the cooler months ahead!

We'll explore the life stories and natural history of the animals roaming our forests and neighborhoods which we often take for granted. Learn some of the surprising details of the iconic animals we grew up with and thought we knew!

Citizen Science

Banders from the Missouri River Bird Observatory (MRBO) gently net, identify, record vital statistics, and uniquely band captured birds before giving visitors the opportunity to release them! Come and go as you like during the three-hour program.
